Miller's Drama, 'All My Sons' Opens Wednesday on 'Y' Stage

"All My Sons," a play to be presented Wednesday through Saturday by the Brigham Young University, is the story of a father's mistake and what it does to his family.

JOE KEELER and Herbert Deever are partners in a machine shop in the Arthur Miller drama. During the war the company produced defective airplane parts which caused the deaths of many men. Herbert Deever is sentenced to prison, but Joe Keeler goes free. Keeler makes a large fortune from the business.

Intensity mounts through the love affair of Chris Keeler and Ann Deever. The play is climaxed by a scene in which the son violently reacts to the actions of his guilty father.

"I DON'T KNOW," another play that has more dramatic impact than this one," said Lael J. Woodbury, director of "All My Sons." This play has a stirring appeal on people's emotions according to Dr. Woodbury.

Elder S. Dilworth Young Says . . .

Free Agency: Right to Follow God

by Rita Wheeler
Universe Campus Editor

"Free agency is not your right to judge or criticize others as they attempt to live the Gospel. . . . Free agency is not my right to do anything I want to, regardless — that's anarchism. Free agency is our right to follow God's will."

THESE WERE some of the words of Elder S. Dilworth Young as he spoke to the members of the Brigham Young University Stake Sunday, delighted them with tales of his youth and counseled them by telling them experiences of his life.

The meetings were attended by just under 5000 in the morning and nearly 4000 in the afternoon, according to figures compiled by stake clerk Fred Schendman. Pres. Antone K. Romney presided at both sessions.

During THE morning session of the conference, Elder Young, a member of the First Council of Seventy, urged stake members to hear, understand and recognize revelation when it is given.

Having the spirit of the Holy Ghost is not limited to missionaries, he commented. He said that "anyone who lives a righteous life can have the whisperings of the spirit."

THEN HE queried, "But if you should contemplate doing because you've been invited and you know the person has evil intentions against you, do you think you'll have a revelation to tell you not to go?"

He advised his listeners to "go the way the principles say" and then he added that the "intent of a person is often the only revelation as to how you should perform."

IN THE afternoon session Elder Young encouraged members of the stake to "maintain faithfulness, maintain dignity, maintain honor." He said, "If you haven't decided what to do and want to be guided by correct principles, then ask the Lord."

"Be determined," he urged. "Tell the Lord you want to serve Him and things will come your way." In presenting these ideas, Elder Young told amusing stories of his courtship days and commented, "I have been speaking for 40 minutes and you have been laughing for 30!"

DETERMINED SPEAKER—"The principles of the gospel are all the revelation you will need to guide your lives, if you are determined to serve the Lord," Elder S. Dilworth Young told listeners at a BYU Stake Conference Sunday.

France Shows Support Of DeGaulle Measures

PARIS, Feb. 1.—(UPI)—Labor leaders called on 13 million French workers to stage a one-hour work stoppage today in a demonstration of support for President Charles De Gaulle and his Algerian policies.

Reports indicated the first crack in the ranks of the die-hard French insurgents in Algiers, focal point of the insurrection, this morning. A large number of the French settlers who had held out since last Sunday were reported to have abandoned the barricades during the night. It was not immediately clear whether the revolt had been broken, however.

THE PRO-GAULLE work stoppage was scheduled for 11 a.m. to noon. It was ordered by the three big union groups—Socialist, Communist and Catholic—as well as dozens of small independent organizations, including students and teacher groups. It was billed as an "hour of silence"—without speeches or demonstrations.

BUT VIRTUALLY all of metropolitan France and most of Algeria had rallied to De Gaulle's side in the showdown with the French settlers.

His prestige was probably higher today than ever before. His tough no-compromise peace was hailed by all as a firm declaration of authority and it was being credited with averting civil war.

IN A NATIONWIDE broadcast Friday, De Gaulle reiterated his determination to push ahead with his plan for a plebiscite to determine the future of Algeria. He demanded the full allegiance of the wavering troops in Algiers and called on the insurgents to end their revolt at once.

Kirby Stone Sees BYU As U.S. Cross-Section

by Pat Middleton
Associate Campus Editor

"That's a great cross-section of America," Kirby Stone said with one sweep of the hand. The singer was referring to crowds that gathered after the show Friday night when the Kirby Stone Quart thrilled their audience with song, satire and swing, to the tune of Si Zentner's band.

"THERE'S A LOT more we could say, for you've really been wonderful to us and we're grateful," he said. "We hope to see you kids again."

While two members of the quartet, Kirby and Eddie Hall (Lil' Polson) stayed with Zentner and his band for rehearsals to get the show started, Mike Gardner and Larry Foster were dinner guests of Snow Princess Ida Funk, her roommates Rupa Rivers, Carolyn James and Vickie and Mary Remmel in Maeser Hall. Also present were Ida's attendants, Tuija Hellstrom and Sharon Low.

OTHER GUESTS included chairman of the royalty committee in charge of Winter Carnival contests, Gary England and his wife, Doreen president Ursenbeck, Dorm parents Mr. and Mrs. Rex Hayes and Hal Dunford, chairman of Winter Carnival.

Foster made a few comments on Heritage Hall's surroundings. "AREN'T YOU kids afraid of rockslides?" he said, peering out of the window at Y Mountain. He thought the family living units were "impressive."

Mike, the "deadpan" member of the group who is anything but a deadpan old stage, came west ten years ago. He now considers it a "better place to live."

"I MIGHT consider settling down here, but it all depends on the opportunity to make a good living," he said.

The members of the quartet are all married with an aggregate total of seven children. Their manager, George Greit, "a great guy and good friend," is a resident of Beverly Hills, Calif.

From Formosa Shows to Prepare Native Dishes

Maxine Lewis

Why and answering as she worked, Hu Shu-Hsien, a graduate student from Formosa, Shaanxi, last week demonstrated methods of food preparation for interested faculty members of the University of Oregon, the College of Living, known as Susie to her here at the Brigham Young University, is a girl who came to BYU "some missionaries here about it. They said it was a good school." She is a student in Foods and this is the first time she has been away from pared three dishes using ham, chicken and other meats. She said she had heard that the same kinds of food were prepared there. You boil your meat in water. In Taiwan, it is not so main course, everything. She demonstrated the traditional native cooking method to explain to the young people of the city near American, "because it is more traditional." She said the Formosians are the oldest of five children, teaches statistics at the University of Taiwan.

where she graduated with a major in Agriculture Chemistry. The university is about the same size as BYU, having an enrollment of slightly more than 10,000 students.

Susie was born in Shanghai. Her family fled to Formosa before the Communists gained control of the mainland. She vividly recalls the trip to Formosa, saying, "The ship was too crowded. People were worried. There were too many people." Many of her relatives are still in Communist China. Her family communicates with them through Canada.

She speaks almost flawless English and said that in Taiwan the class lectures are given in Chinese, but English textbooks, similar to ours are used. Thus, everyone studies English as well as his native language.

Girls as well as boys are required to take two years of military training. Susie said that, "For me, this training is not too useful. I learned to shoot guns."

After she receives her degree, Susie will return to Formosa. Beyond that, her plans are not too certain, but right now she is happy here and likes the people and BYU.

'Baker's Dozen' - Tough Cookies, Row Past Hapless Cougar Five, 84-53

By Don Roberts
Sports Editor

LOGAN—Utah State's fast breaking Farmers tightened their grip on first place in the Skyline hoop race Friday with a lopsided 84-53 victory over Brigham Young's outmanned five.

The Cougars, minus the services of hooking center Dave East, could not match the fast pace of Coach Cec Baker's talented "Baker's Dozen" of five "iron men."

THE AGS jumped to a quick 16-8 lead. Then a concerted effort on the part of the Cats narrowed the gap to 16-14 before the USU squad caught on fire to bury the visitors in an avalanche of points.

Reserve Aggie guard Max Perry provided the floor generalship and scoring punch in the first half with 11 points and numerous assists as the Farmers led the floor with a 39-24 lead.

THE AGS CAME BACK before a partisan crowd of 6,482 in the second stanza to keep the pressure on and move quickly to a 20-point advantage. The board work and shooting of Utah forwards Jerry Schofield and Cornell Green all but overwhelmed the Cats. They got 23 and 21 points respectively for the game.

The visiting Cougars were as cold from the field as the "fire-house five" were hot. The Cats hit 27 per cent from the field while Baker's men could do no wrong, connecting for 45 per cent.

GREEN, Perry, Schofield, together with Ralph Callimore and Tyler Wilbon played most of the entirety of the game, leaving with 5-44 left in the final period. Even then the crowd booned the action, wishing to see the "iron men" relieve years of suffering at the hands of the other two Beehive rivals by pouring on the coal.

Coech Stan Watts had his share of problems with East's out of the lineups. The bulk of the Cats scoring came from Ron Bell and Gary Earnest with 12 each and Valoy Eaton with 10. But the other positions were less productive and the Cougar men had to dip deep into his bench for more offensive punch.

BUT the material just wasn't there, and defensively as well the Cats couldn't keep up with their tireless opponents. Defensively the Ags were outstanding. Wilbon blocked about six shots in and around the key.
